

Urban and Regional Planning at

THE FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY

Continuing Education and Research (CER)

Urban and Regional Development

- Strategic Planning, Monitoring, and Evaluation
- Land Use Planning
- Transportation and Land Uses
- Infrastructure and Housing
- Neighborhood Planning
- Local Economic Development
- Community Development Systems
- Urban and Regional Information Systems

Urban Design

- Methods of Urban Design
- Site Design and Land Use Analysis
- Visualization Methods for Urban Design
- Pedestrian Oriented Communities

Real Estate

- Real Estate Finance
- Real Estate and Its Legal Environment
- Plan Implementation
- Urban Economics
- Zoning

Corporations, institutions, and individual professionals from Latin America find in CER a unique opportunity to obtain state-of-the-art continuing education in urban and regional planning. Corporations, governmental, and non-governmental organizations also find in CER professional advice in the pursuit of urban and regional research and practice. Corporative and institutional packages are available

International Graduate Program in Urban and Regional Planning

- Advance Planning Problems
- Infrastructure and Housing in Less Developed Countries
- Sustainable Development
- Urbanization Issues in Panama
- Land Use Analysis
- Site Design
- Urban Design

U.S. professionals, including Engineers, Architects, Environmental and Business professionals and, Social Scientists, pursuing either a Master of Science Degree in Planning (MSP) or a Ph.D., travel to Latin America to complete their final projects at the International Program in Urban and Regional Planning.

THE FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY

Dr. Olmedo J. Varela, Ph.D.
Director

International Program in Urban and Regional Planning (IPURP)
ovarela@fsu.edu
Telephone: 317-0367